In this episode of Wings Podcast we meet Arnav Mariwala a geophysicist by education, entrepreneur by profession, and enthusiastic nerd by choice. He currently works in Climate Tech and his interest in the field was driven by a fascination with the outdoors and the connection humans share with nature, ecosystems, and the physical world. Originally intending to be an astrophysicist and historian, he's dabbled in a number of fields and hobbies - physics, history, policy, sailing, scuba diving, cooking & food - before going deep into the subject of climate change. Arnav founded a climate risk startup called 'HighTide' after graduating from Stanford University and currently works at 'ClimateAi,' another climate risk startup.
